Future of Education

The future, by definition, is unpredictable; but by being attuned to some of the trends now sweeping across the world we can learn – and help our children learn – to adapt to, thrive in and even shape whatever the future holds.

OECD Future of Education and Skills 2030 (2019)

Education is no longer about teaching students something alone; it is more important to be teaching them to develop a reliable compass and the navigation tools to find their own way in a world that is increasingly complex, volatile and uncertain. Our imagination, awareness, knowledge, skills and, most important, our common values, intellectual and moral maturity, and sense of responsibility is what will guide us for the world to become a better place

RESEARCH & PLAN

Union Representatives: Develop list of demands and prioritize.
Management Team: Identify constraints and prepare counteroffers.
Mediator: Understand both sides and plan strategies to facilitate.

INITIAL NEGOTIATIONS

Encourage creative solutions and compromise.

RESOLUTION AND REFLECTION

Aim to reach a mutual agreement that satisfies both parties.
Discuss as a class what strategies were effective and what challenges arose.

SWIFT ENTERPRISES NEGOTIATION

Swift Enterprises, a cutting-edge tech company based in Silicon Valley, has recently made headlines with its innovative gadgets and vibrant work culture. Known for its casual office environment and creative freedom, the company has attracted top talent from around the globe. However, as Swift Enterprises has expanded its operations, employees have started to voice concerns about their compensation and working conditions. A recent company-wide survey revealed that 70% of employees reported feeling stressed, with many mentioning the 50-hour work weeks as a primary cause. Despite their passion for their work, employees feel their $75,000 average annual salary falls short compared to the $85,000 industry standard.

The management team at Swift Enterprises is aware of these sentiments but faces its own set of challenges. With plans to launch a new product line within six months, the company is under significant financial pressure. Swift's revenue increased by 20% last year to $150 million, but operational costs have risen due to global supply chain disruptions. "We need to retain our talent, but we must also safeguard our financial health," says CFO Jamie Lin. Management is keen on keeping their workforce but is wary of implementing changes that could jeopardize financial stability.

In response to growing discontent, the employees, represented by a newly formed union, have put forth a series of demands. These include a 15% salary increase to align with industry norms, additional paid time off to combat burnout, and enhanced health benefits, particularly in mental health support. Employees are also advocating for flexible work hours or the option to work remotely, arguing that these changes will boost productivity and morale. "We love what we do, but we need better support and recognition," says union leader Alex Martinez. The union cites examples from other tech companies that have successfully implemented similar measures, resulting in increased employee satisfaction and retention.

Management, while sympathetic to these requests, has proposed alternative solutions. They suggest a phased salary increase over two years and the introduction of wellness programs instead of more paid time off. Additionally, management is considering offering stock options as a long-term incentive, aligning employee interests with company performance. "We believe these measures will address employee concerns without compromising our financial goals," explains HR Director Mia Chen. However, with competitors already poaching Swift's top talent with better offers, the pressure is mounting to reach a resolution that satisfies all parties.

As negotiations commence, a mediator has been brought in to facilitate discussions between the union and management. The mediator's role is to ensure that both sides communicate openly and work towards a mutually beneficial agreement. The aim is to enhance employee satisfaction while supporting Swift Enterprises' ambitious growth plans. With the stakes high and emotions running strong, all parties must navigate this complex situation carefully to achieve a balance that benefits everyone involved.

Swift Enterprises Negotiation

Union Representatives

Objective: Advocate for employee demands and well-being.

Tasks:

- Present the demands clearly, including salary increases, better benefits, and working conditions.
- Use data and examples from other companies to support arguments.
- Negotiate to achieve the best possible outcome for employees.

Management Team

Objective: Represent the company's financial and operational interests.

Tasks:

- Present the company's constraints and counteroffers.
- Propose solutions that align with both employee needs and company goals.
- Maintain a focus on financial stability and future growth.

Mediator

Objective: Facilitate productive dialogue between the two parties.

Tasks:

- Set ground rules for respectful and open communication.
- Help both sides understand each other's perspectives.
- Suggest compromises and guide the negotiation toward a mutually beneficial agreement.

Finding common ground is the foundation for building a thriving future.

Copyrights give the registered owner the legal rights to creative works of authors, musicians, conductors, playwrights (scriptwriters) and directors.

Goodwill is the reputation and established networks (know-how) of an organization, which adds significance above the market value of the firm's physical assets.

Intangible assets are a type of fixed asset except they are non-physical assets with a monetary value to the business. These assets are protected by intellectual property rights (IPRs).

A license gives a business the legal rights to operate, use intellectual property, or access resources, providing it with long-term value as an intangible asset.

Patents are the official rights given to a business to exploit an invention or process for commercial purposes.

Trademarks are a form of intellectual property that give the owner exclusive commercial use of the registered brands, logos, and/or slogans (catchphrases).

Box 1. Key constructs related to “student agency”

Student agency relates to the development of an identity and a sense of belonging. When students develop agency they rely on motivation, hope, self-efficacy and a growth mindset (the understanding that abilities and intelligence can be developed) to navigate towards well-being. This enables them to act with a sense of purpose, which guides them to flourish and thrive in society.
